Chiffon Cake

The light and airy chiffon cake made its way to the height of popularity in the 1950s. It's thought to be invented by insurance agent Harry Baker (no joke!) in 1927 who guarded the recipe for two decades before finally selling it to General Mills so that "Betty Crocker could give the secret to the women of America." The cake's secret is that the egg whites are beaten separately from the rest of the ingredients and it uses vegetable oil instead of shortening. In the 1950s General Mills sponsored several chiffon cake contests where a wide variety of flavors were born. March 29th happens to be National Lemon Chiffon Cake Day, and would be a great day to start practicing your fair entry!

Spam

Made with only 5 ingredients (pork with ham, salt, water, potato starch, sugar, and sodium nitrate), Spam gained popularity when shipped to U.S. troops in the Pacific in World War II. It was good tasting and filling during a time when meat was scarce. Today, Spam is still popular in places where soldiers had been stationed: Hawaii, the Philippines, and Guam. After the war, the Hormel Company hired singers to promote the product, and there was even a music radio show called "Music with the Hormel Girls." Spam's popularity increased, and the billionth can was produced in 1959 while it made its way into casseroles, soups, sandwiches, and other recipes. Today Spam is made in 20 different varieties! Use any of them in your Spam recipe entry.
